See below from Janis. There is concern that conditions around the current sampling location may be amplifying the effects of wildlife, geese, and perhaps the house boat as it relates to bacteria contributions and flushing. Please see if you can add another sample location at the end of the next pier to the south to perhaps get a more representative sample. If it were a continuous source of bacteria from a sewer leak, I would have expected Skipper's Pier reading to be high as well during dry weather, which it is not. Let me know....thanks,

Chris --

As we discussed, Douglas took some photos at the RC2 site this morning. You can find them on the engineering shared drive here: J:\JMarkusic\Rockhold Crk July 2019\07192019
Mostly ducks and geese and some waterfowl with babies. The log or platform near the houseboat wasn't there this morning.

We (Chris V, Douglas, me) think the samples collected off the pier (near the Hideaway houseboat) represent a shallow and poorly flushed cove. The shallow water in this cove is quite warm now and enriched with nutrients from the local wildlife population (ducks and geese observed thus far; wildlife camera now deployed) -- this is good environmental habitat for bacteria to grow and persist. I found a couple journal articles on environmental habitat of Enterococcus that I want to read before I can say more on the persistence of these bacteria in such habitat.

I might suggest adding or moving the sample site to the pier opposite the Hideaway Houseboat. See the attached pdf where I added a pink circle to indicate this location. I would be curious to know if the sample results would be similar to those collected at RC2, or more similar to the mainstem sites.

Jeff,

I spoke with James Kitchin (County Exec office) last week at a town hall meeting and he informed me that the 3 weeks of water testing on Rockhold Creek has concluded. I was wondering who has the test results and how they could be obtained.

Sincerely,

Hi Matt,

Thanks for looping me in on that email. Let me know what Jeff has to say. I have a list of numbers, dates, and times that some community members are alleging they called in about sewer issues prior to April 17th and to which we allegedly didn't respond (I just got them this week). What is the best thing to do with them? Do we record conversations that come into the emergency line?

Thanks,

James

Good Evening,

Unless Matt Diehl (PIO for DPW) is on vacation he is intentionally ignoring my phone calls (at least 3) attempting to set the meeting between you, Chris Phipps and myself to discuss the call logs and potential for testing. This is utterly ridiculous and infuriating considering the circumstances; if this situation wasn't at conspiracy level before then it is now.

They've known about the spill as per the emergency call line for months before acknowledging it (documented months prior so let's stop toeing the county line of 1500 gallons) and now they drag their feet incredibly hard to even meet with a private citizen so he can voice his concern regarding their fraud and negligence and how it's contributed to an environmental catastrophe. I hope some of these folks (Larry Parsons and Chris Phipps included) end up on the stand in court before a jury of their peers to tell how they "didn't know" (read: lied) or "didn't realize" (also read: lied) how tens of thousands if not HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS of gallons went directly into our communities' primary waterway. How are we as a community supposed to know how bad the water is in reference to fecal bacteria/parasite levels unless the creek and surrounding areas are tested? Further, how are we supposed to know if the leak has been fully stopped and prevented from rupturing in the future unless testing is done in the surrounding areas to ascertain contaminant levels (multiple test times/dates in the same locations seems simple enough: levels go down, the leak is contained, if the levels stay the same or tick up then that means the spill is still ongoing).

This is a blatant abuse of power and I look forward to seeing how the County Executive's office moves forward with the lack of transparency and accountability being exhibited by DPW/Utilities in the face of a monumental sewage leak.

I referenced the call logs provided to us by the citizen on SECLICKFIX Ticket number 5882332. All calls into to Dispatch (410-222-8400 or 410-2228402) are accounted for on the attached spreadsheet.

Roz,

We have been dealing with a Mr. Schneider in Deale regarding a 1500 gallon sanitary sewer overflow on April 17 near where he lives. Basically, he believes we are under reporting the gallons and is "demanding accountability." We got the Office of Law involved after an email implied that he would potentially take us to court. We had scheduled a meeting with him for last week that he cancelled after the Office of Law advised not to allow him to record it.

He has contacted the Capital. I spoke to Rachael yesterday to provide background information. I have one of our Utility Administrators set to call her at 12:30 p.m. today at her request to detail how we measure the amount of gallons lost in an overflow. James Kitchin has been involved and can also provide more details if needed.

Thanks,
Matt

Even knowing what other work we had going on in the area (you had said our highways crew was there and would have realized if something was going on earlier than was reported) would be helpful.

Please add to your calendar.

I can view your busy times on the calendar but that's all.
